

Cromwell Creative District INTERVIEWS

Chris Cambareri

Chris Cambareri is a native of Cromwell and continues to live, work and volunteer his time in this town. His hats include: co-owner of Willowbrook Plaza, real estate broker, commissioner on Planning and Zoning, 29 years married, father of two, and caring pet owner of dog Lily. He was educated in Cromwell public schools through eighth grade, finished high school at St. Xavier in Middletown and graduated from Quinnipiac University in 1987.

He loves to work and takes pride in the properties he owns in town. For example, the parking lot at Willowbrook Plaza is swept at least four times a week; and if you have visited the restaurants or the ice cream shop, you know that the parking lot profits from this oversight. Others of us visit Willowbrook Spirit Shop and enjoy the quality of its friendly service.

Recently, the former Comcast building in Willowbrook Plaza has been leased to a naturopath, Dr. Farley, and will be a Wellness Center. This will be an excellent asset to Cromwell.

Chris offers that he learned about the importance of public service as a child when his dad, chair of Planning and Zoning in the 1970's, sometimes took him to Town Hall to observe meetings. Chris himself has been on Planning and Zoning for 12 years and enjoys the research this position and his real estate projects require. While he may be best known for his work in commercial real estate, he is part of the residential team at Hagel Associates on Main Street, #inthedistrict. Cromwell Creative District is delighted to have his support.

In his too few spare moments, he might be seen fly fishing. Let us know if you spot him.
